

Part 3

---

Beyond the Classroom

This section describes common assignments, or “Anchors,” that can be taught across a school or a district. It then moves on to explain how to create ideal environments for developing and implementing assignments by paying attention to such factors as time, space, and available resources. Finally, it concludes with a discussion of how assignments can be used as a rich source of data about teaching and learning.