Educational Leadership

IN JANUARY

Supervisors Tell Their Stories: From the diary of a supervisor—“Met with primary teachers and parents interested in nutrition problems of young children ... discussed mid-morning luncheon ... talked with principal about in-service workshop ... talked with sixth grade teacher who prefers primary work but realizes she needs further training ...”—A city, a county, and a state supervisor bring us accounts of a day's work.

A section "Who Is a Supervisor?" develops the theme that supervision is not exclusively a function of a person with the title of supervisor. An article on teacher rating makes clear that such a procedure should be divorced from supervision.

The belief that supervision can be much broader than sitting in the back of the classroom taking notes is amplified in an article on the "supervisory visit." The supervisor's responsibility for helping teachers do a better job is discussed under "Teaching Teachers to Teach."

Contributors are: Estelle S. Smith, Anne Hoppock, Fannie Dunn, Elsie Coleman, Virgil M. Rogers, E. Louise Noyes, G. Franklin Stover, Lou LaBrant, C. W. Humncutt, and Mary Henderson.

IN THIS ISSUE

Planning—for Better Living

Why Plan? ......................... Cyril O. Houle ........ 98
Youth Planners at Work .......... Theodore D. Rice .... 101
Planning Follows a River's Course ................... David E. Lilienthal ... 105
When Neighbors Get Together .......... William Bacon .... 111
A City Plans ....................... Wilson W. Wyatt .. 115
Top-Heavy Leadership ................. C. A. Weber .... 118
Books on the Road ................... Rubie E. Smith .... 123
School Daze ......................... Etta Parks ........ 125
Keeping Up on Militraining ........... 133
What You Think About Militraining ............. 140

Departments

The Listening Post ...................... DSCD Legislative Committee .......... 129
Front Lines in Education ................. Henry Harap .......... 130
The Importance of People .......... Mary and Harry H. Giles 134
The New—in Review .................. Alice Miel .......... 136
Tools for Learning .................... Margaret Kirkpatrick .. 139