Educational Leadership

Combining: EDUCATIONAL METHOD CURRICULUM JOURNAL

SUPERVISION—AN ADVENTURE IN HUMAN RELATIONSHIPS • The Human Side of Curriculum Development • No Ceiling on Praise • Democratic Climate for Education • Strategy in Supervision

Journal of The Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development, N.E.A.
Educational Leadership

IN FEBRUARY
The School Community:
Next month's magazine brings discussions of the various aspects of the school in relation to the community.
There are general discussions of the opportunities which should be offered for children to participate more actively in the affairs of the school and the way in which various experiences on the part of children and adults can further increase understanding of how the other fellow thinks and lives.
There are accounts of research which has been done in this area, and other articles describe actual practices within schools which have initiated and carried through programs that recognized the schools' major part in the community.

IN THIS ISSUE
Supervision—An Adventure in Human Relationships
No Monopoly on Leadership...Alice V. Keliher...214
The Human Side of Curriculum Development........Vernon E. Anderson...218
Let's Begin Where the Teacher Is...................Chandos Reid...222
No Ceiling on Praise........Melvin C. Wilson...227
Can We Supervise Through Group Planning?........William M. Alexander...230
Successful Leadership Must Be Constructive........Amo DeBernardis...234
Democratic Climate for Education........Margaret O. Koopman...239
Strategy in Supervision........Louis E. Armstrong...245
Self Development Through Good Guidance........Edith Gann...249

Departments
Our Readers Say........Our Teachers Speak...254
The Importance of People...Ruth Cunningham...262
The Listening Post........ASCD Legislative Committee...264
The New—in Review........Sara M. Krentzman...265
Front Lines in Education...Henry Harap...268
The Changing World........Ernest O. Melby...272