Effective Tools for Education's Task.

Classroom teachers, curriculum directors, principals, supervisors, and members of college faculties will find numerous and varied suggestions for more effective production and use of instructional materials in the January issue of Educational Leadership.

A Fable of Textbook Strategy by William Van Til, Film Production for Modern Schools by George L. White, Jr., Are You Ready to Teach by Thelma Thorne, Imperatives in Instructional Materials by Stephen M. Corey, and What Is a Curriculum Laboratory by Francis L. Drag are some of the articles. Amo DeBernardis and Edward G. Olsen present a valuable bibliography on audio-visual and community resource materials, and Dorothy McCuskey and Lillian C. Paukner discuss the types of materials produced and used in a program of curriculum development.

Other contributors include Marion A. Anderson, Helen Olson, Ella Callista Clarke, and Alice Hayden.
