Restructuring Schools to Match a Changing Society
The momentum for restructuring schools comes from disparate sources: determined leaders in the field, dedicated teachers, governors, even social/demographic changes. The task for educators and policymakers is to view the past as a starting point, not as a model, as we look forward to the 21st century. Only then can we fuse the energy from all the sources to redesign and reorder schools for the benefit of students. Prop fabrication by Sam Hanks. Photograph by Dennis Johnson. Design by Al Way.
