The Superintendent

WILLIAM J. LEARY

The Applause Is for the Booing

As a superintendent, I'm concerned about the future of the teaching profession in the public schools. Until the flurry of national reports criticizing public education, I thought we had been doing a pretty good job.

Oh, I was familiar with many of the problems. After all, I had participated in the desegregation of a major urban school district. I had also experienced the difficulty of closing a school in an affluent suburb. Now I work with teachers and parents to recognize and act upon the student dropout problem. I am aware of the problems of social class structure and racism in our society. And I listen to evidence about lack of basic skills and declining SAT scores and to different views about bilingualism.

I believed then, and still do believe, that this profession of public education that I chose actively pursues the positive resolution of these problems. For example, collaborative efforts of educators, parents, and citizens to improve schools, such as the Boston Compact and the Broward Company in Florida, are flourishing.

Reading the national reports and keeping up with the critics who applauded them reminded me of an old story.

Backstage, at the end of the performance of a new play, an actor turned to the playwright and said, "Listen to all that booing from the audience. This play is terrible."

The optimistic playwright responded, "Oh, but I hear some applause." "Don't fool yourself," said the actor. "That's for the booing!"

Of course, justifiable criticism must always be heard, whether of plays or of schools. But criticism of the education profession, particularly of public education, by national political and business figures, has been gratuitous and condemnatory. And this booing in... education has reached the ears of too many young potential teachers who hear how “terrible” teaching is.

Professor Terry Deal of Vanderbilt University describes how in his journeys he meets people who work for IBM. When he asks what it would take to get them to leave IBM, they look at him in amazement. Leave IBM? No way. But try asking that question of public school teachers.

We in public education must create a more positive atmosphere in order to make the downbeat upbeat... to restore the sublime excitement of teaching kids and improving society... to hear the applause rather than the booing.

William J. Leary is Superintendent, Broward County Public Schools, 1320 S.W. Fourth St., Fort Lauderdale, FL 33312.

The Manual of Textbook Adoption
- An effective reference guide for the Textbook Adoption process.
Handy loose-leaf format with ready-to-use and ready-to-duplicate pages for district use

3 ways to take the guesswork out of text selection

1. A step-by-step approach to the text adoption process including
   How to establish an adoption schedule that
   • spreads out the budgetary impact and costs of textbook replacement
   • coordinates with publishers' schedules
   How to establish a committee structure which
   • builds ownership and commitment
   • involves teachers, principals, and parents
   Suggested activities and timetables
   Sample memos and meeting agendas
   Proven procedures for working with Publishers, including
   • sample letters for inquiry, bid solicitations and follow-up

2. The Committee Members' Handbook including
   The process of text selection
   Responsibilities of committee members
   Developing program goals
   Establishing custom-made selection criteria

3. Updates of Research and Publishers' Schedules
Available separately

COMMENTS FROM PARTICIPANTS
IN THE TEXTBOOK ADOPTION PROCESS
This selection process makes efficient use of staff time and results in quality recommendations. - B. President Board of Directors
I am proud to have been involved in this new and sophisticated approach to text selection. - S.L. Principal
By having identified exactly what we were looking for, we worked efficiently and wisely in selecting the best available materials for our students. - A.R. Teacher

$69.95
plus $4.50 per copy postage and handling
Mail order together with check or purchase order to OUTCOMES ASSOCIATES, P.O. Box 1046, Monroe, WA 98272
(206) 732-2173 or (206) 743-9000

Teachers Reclaiming Their Profession
1988 Summer Institute on Teaching
July 11 - 16, 1988

The fifth annual Summer Institute on Teaching will be held on the New York City campus of Teachers College, Columbia University. The Institute brings together classroom teachers, supervisors, administrators, and teacher educators to consider issues shaping the life and work of teachers today. Speakers will include:

Thomas Sergiovanni
Madeline Grumet
Maxine Greene
Joel Spring
Frances Bolin

This is a Continuing Professional Education opportunity for in-depth examination of contemporary issues; discussion and interaction with participants from across the nation; involvement in workshops on teacher leadership, models of instruction, teacher as researcher, and curriculum development.

For detailed information, please contact:
Dr. Frances S. Bolin, Box 36
Teachers College, Columbia University
New York, New York 10027
(212) 678-3770