ASCD's highly successful 1989 Annual Conference was just last month. Yet it's not too soon to begin planning for 1990. The 1990 Annual Conference will take place in San Antonio, Texas, on March 3-6. The Conference Planning Committee has made some important changes in procedure that prospective presenters should know about:

- Proposal forms must be postmarked no later than June 15, 1989. As in the past, three raters will read and score each proposal.
- Individuals are limited to two proposals, whether they appear as primary or secondary presenters.
- Individuals should mark only one strand, value, level, and format.
- Networks may sponsor one session aside from the usual job-alike groups and network business meetings.

Proposal forms are now available. To order, call Michelle Kelly (ext. 159), Annual Conference Department.

The 1990 Conference strands will be:

- Restructuring Learning Environments: How should the functions and roles of schools be changed to best serve tomorrow's global citizens?
- What's Worth Knowing?: What kinds of literacy should learners develop to cope with a world where knowledge is constantly expanding and work requirements are continually changing?
- Children in Crisis: How should schools respond to the social, psychological, and physical problems of students?
- Leadership for Responsible Change: What leadership abilities and strategies are needed to improve schools and develop students' skills for global citizenship?
- World Promises and Challenges: How can schools develop a level of cultural understanding among teachers and students that will reinforce the interrelatedness of cultures and nations?
- Supervision: Collaborating for Growth: How can supervisory practices promote teacher growth and development, particularly that which is self-directed?

The Conference Planning Committee encourages presenters to describe ways in which technology can be used to support restructured schooling for a changing world.
