On July 27, 1989, a committee met at ASCD headquarters to develop guidelines to ensure cooperative and productive relationships between industry and schools. The committee members were (L to R below) Alex Molnar (Chair), Professor of Education, University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee; Marcy Ubois, Coordinator of Volunteer Services, Alexandria (Va.) Public Schools; Darby Anderson of the Alaska Department of Education; and Dan Merenda, Executive Director, National Association of Partners in Education.

The committee discussed the broad spectrum of potentially useful relationships that can exist between local industries and schools, and carefully considered the appropriate use of industry-sponsored instructional materials. The guidelines they have developed will be published in full in the December 1989/January 1990 issue of Educational Leadership.
