ASCD's Outstanding Dissertation Awards

ASCD announces its outstanding Dissertation Awards Program for 1991. This decade-old program annually recognizes dissertations in the fields of curriculum, instruction, and supervision. Awards are presented for those dissertations that significantly advance the knowledge and understanding of educational theories, concepts, and practices.

Candidates for the award must have completed a dissertation that was approved during the academic year of September 1, 1990-August 31, 1991, by an institution of higher education sanctioned by a regional accrediting agency.

A panel of professors and practitioners will judge dissertation abstracts by the following criteria:

- significance of the topic,
- conceptual framework,
- research design,
- potential significance and outcome,
- quality of writing.

Those applying must submit dissertation abstracts by November 15, 1991. Submit 4 copies of a summary not to exceed 10 double-spaced pages (including any bibliography and/or tables). The 10 pages can be from a part of the dissertation that best reflects the work, or a special summary. For example, one person might include 10 pages of text; another, 5 pages of text and 5 pages of bibliography; yet another might mix text and tables.

To ensure fairness in the judging, the summary should indicate only the title and category of the dissertation. Summaries should not mention names of institutions, districts, or states that identify where the dissertation is from.

One winner will be chosen in each of the three categories of curriculum, instruction, and supervision. Winners will be notified by February 1, 1992.

The winners will be recognized at ASCD's 1992 Annual Conference, April 4-7, 1992, in New Orleans, where they will present their papers during a special session. At a lunch honoring award-winners, each will receive a plaque and a two-year complimentary comprehensive membership in ASCD.

Completed packages must include the following information:
- Name, business and home addresses, and telephone numbers;
- Title of the dissertation and date completed;
- Category of the dissertation (curriculum, instruction, or supervision);
- Name of the college/university and the department that conferred the degree;
- Name, mailing address, and telephone number of major advisor.

Send entries to: Lisa Street, Project Facilitator, ASCD, 1250 N. Pitt St., Alexandria, VA 22314-1403. Entries must be postmarked on or before November 15, 1991.
